for a special meeting to address problems associated with human/coyote interactions.

National Park Service urban coyote biologists Cathy Schoonmaker and Justin Brown will be presenting this program amid growing concerns regarding coyote moving into residential areas.

There will be a PowerPoint presentation discussing urban coyote behavior and how we can reduce coyote attractants. Additionally, a coyote hazing video will be shown, followed by how and when to haze coyote.

Participants will then go outside for a demonstration of tools and hazing methods. Hopefully this training will help if you encounter coyote in your neighborhood. The “loudest whistle in the world” will be given to 99 attendees – which is also the room capacity.

All residents are invited to participate in this event.

If you spot coyote along your route, please take the time to make a report at <http://gmrnet.com/Coyotea.html>
Please make sure to use a cap “C” on the Coyotea... otherwise it won't come through. ~thanks
